The Australian Pain Society's ASM is the only multidisciplinary conference in Australia offering insights into the complex nature of pain management from a variety of medical, nursing and allied health perspectives.

The 2022 Australian Pain Society 42nd Annual Scientific Meeting (APS 2022) is being held from 10 - 13 April 2022 in Hotel Grand Chancellor, Hobart TAS.

The Australian Pain Society continues to align their conference theme with the IASP Global Year; in 2022 this is, the IASP Global Year for Translating Pain Knowledge to Practice.

The Scientific Program Committee is thrilled to have procured three most impressive international speakers:

Professor Patrick Mantyh is a Professor of Pharmacology in the Arizona Cancer Centre at the University of Arizona, USA, he has been in this role since 2007. His interest is to understand the mechanisms that drive skeletal pain and develop new therapies that reduce pain and increase skeletal health.

Professor Andrew Rice is a clinical academic active in clinical practice and translational research elucidating neuropathic pain. He is Professor of Pain Research at Imperial College London and Honorary Consultant in Pain Medicine at Chelsea and Westminster Hospital, London.

She is the recipient of the 2018 Wilbert E. Fordyce Clinical Investigator Award from the American Pain Society and the 2020 Ronald D. Melzack Lecture Award from The International Association for the Study of Pain.

They will be joined by an inspiring range of national speakers who will provide a glance into some of the most complex and dynamic areas of pain management.

The APS is focused on bringing the APS membership, and all those with an interest in pain management, a conference in 2022. We are excited to see you again face to face to network, collaborate and learn.
