10,000 Branches: Improving Security for the Remote Workforce

J. Wolfgang Goerlich, Advisory CISO, Duo Security

"Work from home has meant we're suddenly responsible for ten thousand branch offices," a friend and CISO recently told me. But existing controls and approaches won't scale, so we have to rethink the problem of security and redefine how we provide services. Join us for this session where we'll cover ways to enhance security for people working from home with better visibility, analytics, and policy enforcement—and redefine the security perimeter as anywhere we make an access control decision. We'll also introduce how design thinking can improve the experience for remote employees.
